Cultural quarter launched

by Dan Stephens

THE Royal Borough of Greenwich has launched its exciting vision to create London's newest cultural destination in Woolwich.

Plans were outlined at the official launch of the proposals last Friday (June 19) with performances from leading artists celebrating this exciting direction for Woolwich and local area.

The royal borough is working to make the long held ambition of establishing a famous cultural and heritage quarter at the Royal Arsenal a reality. The council is set to secure the leases on a number of outstanding heritage buildings that will be used to house world-class cultural facilities - and hopefully attract innovative arts and cultural organisations in the near future.

The cultural and heritage quarter will cement the positive transformation of Woolwich, which is already benefiting from an ambitious programme of regeneration - 2,500 homes are being built on the Royal Arsenal and the new Crossrail station will be opening in 2018.

Culture and tourism are already hugely important to the royal borough, which each year sees almost 20 million people visiting. The sector provides a £1.2bn boost for the local economy each year and the council is committed to investment in art and culture which the government cites as a sector that is growing three times as fast as the general economy. The establishment of the new cultural and heritage quarter at the Royal Arsenal is part of the council's wider vision for Woolwich and aims to use Woolwich's military heritage to do for the town what the naval heritage

Wild land has been turned into a dumping ground

THERE is some wild land I believe to be owned by the royal borough that lies behind Gregory Crescent, Joan Crescent and Churchbury Road leading onto the Quaggy River. This land is usually filled with wild flowers and provides an ecosystem for a wide variety of creatures and plant species. However, over the past couple of weeks, possibly longer, it has turned into an illegal dumping ground; full of old construction materials, plastics and chemicals. In turn, the unwanted goods are arranged in big piles where they are set alight. I spoke to a local resident who said that the fire services are frequently called to put out these fires, as there is a danger that it will spread to the trees along the motorway and train station where behind lie family homes, breathing in the dangerous fumes. It is quite frankly, very upsetting, to see first-hand the effects of the way we live on what land is left. It is also putting an unnecessary strain on our fire services. I have filed a report to the environmental health department already, please could you let me know if the council to do something. Ms Ellese Elliott, Eltham
● Many thanks for your concern on this issue. The land that you refer to is known as Harmony Woods and is managed by the council. The site has unfortunately faced problems with dumped rubbish and anti-social behaviour in recent times, but the council has acted to combat these problems and hopefully ensure that the area continues to be a valuable local ecosystem and pleasant open space for residents. In April the council acted swiftly to remove large amounts of household and building rubbish left by users of the site. The council is also working with the police and other local organisations to restrict unauthorised access - including tackling the problem of irresponsible individuals riding motorbikes on the site. Work is in hand to install bollards to prevent these problems affecting Harmony Woods in the future. Residents can help keep the local area clean and tidy by reporting fly-tipping when they encounter it. More information at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/flytipping Find out more about how the council tackles fly-tipping and illegal rubbish dumping on p12&13.

Shame to lose another adult learning base

BURRAGE Grove adult education (above Heronsgate School) closed its doors last term. It is a shame that one more facility is lost forever to the pensioners of Greenwich. These classes were, in some respects, an outing once a week for some, to meet and converse with like-minded students, often bringing their knowledge to the classes as well as their presence. We have also heard the tutors, where the odd class still remains at another venue, are to be replaced by administration staff - not our usual knowledgeable teachers who are always available to assist. The classes will also be missed by the learning disabled community who have a chance to learn, mingle outside their care homes and be a positive bonus for other users. Is this to be the end of adult education Greenwich Council?

Mary Simpson, Greenwich Pensioners Forum
● Thanks for your letter. We understand how important adult education is to residents and the council is 100 per cent committed to providing a high quality learning through our Adult and Community Learning programme. The Council has not cut the Adult and Community Learning budget and we want students to be reassured that we are working with GCC to ensure these courses continue. We understand this is an unsettling time for GCC students currently on courses at these sites and we will help GCC continue provision at other venues as close as possible to where they are currently being provided.

OVER 285 visitors attended an open day event at the royal borough's Equestrian Skills and Riding Centre during Adult Learners' Week earlier this month.

The centre in Shooters Hill was set up by the royal borough to add to training and skills opportunities for residents. Visitors were given a tour of the centre and its facilities by students studying full-time courses which are run by Hadlow College. Councillor Sizwe James, royal borough cabinet member for business employment and skills said: "I really enjoyed the open day, particularly the enthusiasm and knowledge the current students leading the tours demonstrated."

It was brilliant to see so many people come through the door on Saturday. We really hope many of them are now considering signing up for courses at the Centre. It offers a chance for people to pursue a career in this sector which has excellent onward employment opportunities and it's brilliant to be able to offer our residents such a first class facility here in the borough."

Lauren Harris, equine commercial and events manager said: "Visitors were able to view our hydrotherapy and classroom facilities, explore careers within the industry, view long-reining and riding demonstrations and have a go on our riding simulator. The highlight of the day for the visitors was meeting Bonnie and all of the other Hadlow College owned horses, stabled at the centre."

WORKS of art created by people with learning disabilities went on display for all to enjoy as part of Learning Disability Week.

They were displayed in the Woolwich Centre from June 15-19 during Learning Disability Week. The display entitled "Hear My Voice" was produced by one of the 13 council-funded community projects under the Day Opportunities Service hosted at specially-adapted venues, and designed to give people with disabilities the chance to get involved in a wide range of activities and learn new skills. The creative arts project is based at Abbey Wood.

Cllr David Gardner, cabinet member for health & adult social care, said: "This wonderful art exhibition gives a public viewing of the tremendous work done by some really talented citizens using Greenwich's Day Opportunities Programme. Thousands of local people pass through the Woolwich Centre every week and it has really brightened up their visit. This is a collection of really interesting art works and sculptures and a real tribute to our citizens with learning disability and those that have helped inspire them running our new opportunities across the borough."

Michael Woodman, who displayed three paintings said: "I was inspired by what I saw in the real world and my dreams. Painting allows me to not only remember these events but give me a voice I never knew I had."

Rachel Davis who created a green sculptured trinket pot said: "Green is my favourite colour so I painted the jar in that colour. The display is very special to me as it is my birthday on June 19 so after the stall is done, I can go celebrate my birthday."

station was on site where people could speak to an officer about personal safety, get tips, leaflets and advice. A specialist Safer Transport team covered various topics including pick pocketing, gadget theft, sexual assault and robbery. Officers distributed personal safety alarms, mobile safety chains and bag alarms. And there was a free bike marking service. Cllr Jackie Smith, royal borough cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "I'm pleased to be working with our police colleagues to help raise awareness of the simple steps that travellers can take to help keep their possessions safe. It's all too easy to 'switch-off' when travelling on a bus or train if listening to music or checking phones. The message is that using public transport remains a very safe way to travel, and it only takes a few simple steps to secure your possessions in a way which will deter opportunist thieves." Police borough commander Helen Millichap added: "Even in a borough as safe as Greenwich, people can take a few precautionary measures - our tips and advice may just make the difference."

She added: "Sexual assaults on public transport are extremely rare but can often be caught on camera so we are able to investigate swiftly as long as the crime is immediately reported to us. We would encourage anyone who is the victim of an assault to call police immediately."

Nathan Oswin, 46, a cyclist travelling to Grove Park said: "I used to be a lorry driver and now that I cycle I am even more aware of the dangers. I'm getting my bike marked today as I have had experience with bike theft before and don't want it to happen again."

Tammy Crompton, 26, said: "The police have been brilliant, and the kids loved meeting them. If people are more cautious, others won't even have a chance to try and steal anything."

Alexx-Mckenzie Adebawale, 16, said: "I feel safe whilst travelling but listening to music does distract me. The police have given me loads of tips to prevent that and a goody bag full of things to help protect me and my belongings whilst travelling."

Marcus Relton, 52, a cyclist travelling home to Blackheath Standard, said: "I wear a high-vis jacket whilst riding and travelling. The police have given me great advice and explained that if the bike is nicked in the future, the mark will be able to help track it down."

Gurkha band to play at the Great Get Together

THIS year's Great Get Together on Saturday, June 27, will have a major Nepalese flavour, with traditional dancing, music, arts – and a guest appearance by the Gurkha regimental band.

The borough has a large Nepalese population, who in recent weeks have been pulling out all stops to help the relief effort following the two devastating earthquakes.

A big element of the Great Get Together is the borough's Armed Forces Day celebrations. And this year marks the 200th anniversary of the formation of the Gurkha Regiment, which has been part of the British army ever since, fighting alongside British soldiers in conflicts all over the world.

A large marquee will host the Nepalese attractions, organised by local groups and organisations. They include artefacts from the Gurkha Museum in Winchester, where the regiment is based, including film and still photos of the Gurkhas in battle.

There will be a large map of Nepal, and local Nepalese in traditional dress will pinpoint to visitors where they are from. Young Nepalese volunteers will act as interpreters, and there will be a dressing up box of national costumes for children to try on.

People can watch and learn Nepalese dances and listen to instruments being played. A female Gurkha soldier will show children how to make a cardboard version of the regiment's traditional kukri, the fearsome curved-bladed knife, and serving and former Gurkha soldiers will also be on hand. Traditional food will also be on sale at stalls run by local Nepalese chefs.

All money raised in the Nepalese section of the event will go to the earthquake appeal, including proceeds from a painting by a Gurkha soldier, which is due to be raffled.

Look out for the Your Borough Your Views stand – here you can give your views on local issues and council services – there's also an opportunity to suggest improvements to your local area and meet local councillors

Sainsbury's new store checks in 135 jobs

ONE hundred and thirty-five new jobs have been secured by local people at a new Sainsbury's store which opens in Charlton Riverside tomorrow (June 24). The new 65,000 square foot store replaces the current Greenwich one. Sainsbury's have been working with Greenwich Local Labour and Business, the council's jobs service, which helped jobhunters with online applications. All jobs have been filled by local people living within a three-mile radius of the store. The company has been working with the site developer, Base Build Services, to help the local community. They have redecorated the local scout hut and are currently working with St Joseph's Primary School to turn cherry trees from the current site into new playground furniture. Billy Woledge, the new store manager said: "We are looking forward to continuing our work within the local community." The new store will be open 7am to midnight on weekdays, 7am to 11pm on Saturdays and from 11am to 5pm on Sundays. ● The final jobs are being filled for a new Abbey Wood store and a new Sainsbury's local store opening in the south of the borough. The Woolwich store has also recently had more refurbishment with a number of new self-service tills added.

Ravensbourne holds fashion degree show

RAVENSBOROUGH students put on a dazzling display as the college held its annual 'The Degree Show', highlighting the work by this year's graduating students as they embark on careers in digital media, fashion and design.

This year's theme was 'Collaboration' with guests invited to come and experience an array of installations from fashion design to animation and web design.

Ravensbourne – based at Greenwich Peninsula – is one of the top fifty institutions in the world for art and design, with an impressive alumni including fashion designers Stella McCartney and Bruce Oldfield, Kevin Carrigan (creative director of Calvin Klein), literary scholar Robert Hewison, furniture designer Emma Hill, sculptor Alison Wilding and co-designer of the Olympic 2012 torch Jay Osgerby.

Rehan Abdul, a third year Graphic Design student said: "The course has helped me to see beyond visually appealing design and we learn a lot from our teacher who has years of experience in the design industry." Nandhu Lescaie, also in his third year doing Graphic Design said: "I have continually developed my skills on this course and it has broadened my way of thinking about design."

This year cinema screenings also took place with a live 4K broadcast during the whole three days of the show.

Laura Wright, a Digital Film Production student said "Being a part of 'The Degree Show' has given me experience on the different aspects of production, such as organising the audience space. We have all worked collaboratively, thanks to all students being in this big open space to exchange ideas."

For the fourth successive year, to highlight and celebrate the successes of its graduates, Ravensbourne hosted an Awards Show with awards chosen and presented by industry guests from across the design and media sectors.

Council backs call for levy on tobacco industry

THE royal borough is backing a new report calling for tobacco companies to foot the bill for reducing smoking rates

The council has joined more than 120 local and national organisations calling on the government to impose an annual levy on tobacco companies. The money raised would pay for tobacco control and stop smoking services which could save thousands of lives over the next decade and play a key role in reduce costs to the NHS from preventable ill health.

The new report, Smoking Still Kills was published by ASH and calls for a new comprehensive strategy on tobacco paid for by a levy on the tobacco industry.

Every year smoking costs the NHS at least £2 billion and a further £10.8 billion in wider costs to society including social care costs of over £1 billion.

The council and local NHS work in partnership on a range of campaigns and initiatives which have helped reduce smoking rates from over 24% of the adult population in 2010 to less than 17% in 2013.

Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald, the royal borough's cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health said: "We have prioritised tackling tobacco in Greenwich over the last few years and have been successful in reducing smoking rates dramatically.

However, smoking still kills large numbers of people in Greenwich and is a major cause of health inequalities, causing a significant impact on our communities and families. For these reasons we are backing calls for a new government strategy on tobacco, in which tobacco companies would contribute directly to the costs of helping people quit smoking."

Councillor Miranda Williams, royal borough cabinet member for culture and creative industries said:

"This is an incredibly exciting vision. It's about putting Woolwich and the borough firmly on the map as a leading cultural destination and it is an important part of our wider regeneration story. We're bringing some beautiful disused buildings back into use that offer a unique facility and a perfect setting for an arts and culture base. The Royal Arsenal is being transformed with new homes and high quality open spaces, all set along a wonderful riverfront. We saw exactly what this vibrant location can offer when a million visitors came to our wonderful Tall Ships festival last summer – we want to do all we can to continue to build on that success by establishing a permanent arts and culture destination here."

Local people will not have to wait long at all to see first class art and cultural events in Woolwich. The Greenwich and Docklands International Festival starts this Friday (June 26) running until July 4. The free annual showcase of outdoor performing arts which forms part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals, takes place in streets, parks and public spaces across the royal borough.

Pupils hit the Brakes

PUPILS from Haimo and Conway Primary Schools took to the streets with a resounding message to local drivers – reduce your speed and make our roads safer.

The Giant Walk event, designed to develop and promote awareness of the importance of road safety, involved pupils walking on parade along busy roads around the Eltham school to nearby Sutcliffe Park.

The classes created banners, posters and slogans to promote their road safety message and remind drivers of their responsibility to drive carefully. The slogans and chants included 'Slow down - Kill your speed, Safer roads are what we need!' and 'Keep kids safe – slow down!'

They were taking part in the Giant Walk, part of a national campaign led by the charity Brake, which campaigns for better road safety in the UK.

Pupils from Plumstead's Conway primary school walked to Winns Common and around it twice raising £420 for the Brake charity.

Haimo headteacher Kathleen Barnes said: "It was really positive there was a buzz around school and the children were talking about the impact they had seen – with drivers slowing down - all day."

The council is committed to even better road safety and is introducing 20 mph speed limits in residential streets in the borough. The decision has contributed to the royal borough having the biggest reduction in serious road casualties of all London boroughs.

Students exchange ideas in Denmark

TWELVE students from Greenwich Community College jetted off to Copenhagen for a week as part of a joint venture with northern Europe's largest school of hospitality - The Copenhagen School of Hospitality.

The college is now looking forward to hosting 20 Danish students in September. The project is based around young people evaluating and learning about different ways of living sustainably and using food resources appropriately. Tania Sumner, head of catering, said: "As well as being the biggest college of its kind in northern Europe, with amazing resources to see we'll be exploring the rich history of food in Denmark and the way we can all produce food more sustainably."

Catering and hospitality are industries that are experiencing significant investment and new jobs as the industry expands. Greenwich Community College offers Catering and Hospitality courses in a range of levels and will also be offering an apprenticeship progression for students on these programmes.

EVERYONE was a class act when they performed for Thamesmead's Got Talent. A local version of the TV talent show helped to entertain the crowds at an event for the Thamesmead Art Festival.

Around 1500 people attended the festival events during half term week.

The festival, was organised by the Peabody Group, which manages homes and community facilities in the area, and delivered by the arts organisation, The Brick Box. There were over 50 activities for locals to take part in including film screenings and workshops, African drumming, local choirs, dance groups and singing workshops. The event also hosted a Thamesmead's Got Talent and a cabaret performance from a comedic hip-hop artist.

Peabody's CEO, Stephen Howlett, said: "The arts, whether it's through music, dance, film or photography, add colours to our communities and they bring people together. We hope the week-long Thamesmead Arts Festival will be the beginning of something bigger, kick-starting an arts programme that will leave a legacy lasting well into the future."

Come clean

FLY-TIPPING is not only illegal, unsightly and dangerous – it costs a huge amount to clean up as well.

The council is working harder than ever to keep local streets clean and takes strong action against those who irresponsibly dump rubbish. The council is supported by royal borough Environment Champions – local residents who take pride in keeping their neighbourhoods clean – who perform a vital role in combatting fly-tipping by reporting it and helping to keep streets and open spaces rubbish free.

by Dan Stephens

THE royal borough pays a heavy price for the irresponsible actions of those who dump rubbish and fly-tip. This is why the council is working harder than ever to combat fly-tipping and take strong action against perpetrators.

Last year, 14,503 fly-tips were removed from local streets and open spaces by the council. This added up to an unsightly 730 tonnes of waste, which cost roughly £210,000 to collect and dispose of.

The council is committed to reducing the impact of fly-tipping both in terms of cost and the impact on the local environment. It works with the police, the Environment Agency and surrounding London boroughs to do so.

Recently the council has targeted fly-tipping in the Brookhill and Elmdene Road area of Woolwich – where there have been almost 200 recent requests to remove items unlawfully deposited on the pavement.

Involving a range of organisations, there have been significant successes recently – with the council working with local Environment Champions, private landlords and the police to identify 14 properties seen to be contributing to waste dumping and social nuisance in the area.

The action taken has seen a reduction in the amount of rubbish dumped on local streets and has resulted in a range of recent enforcement action against some of the properties cited. One landlord received a caution over the behaviour of their tenants, who were dumping waste on the street. Another was issued with a fixed penalty of £125 after an Environment Champion reported them for dumping household rubbish on the street.

However, a key element of the work involves building positive and inclusive relationships with local landlords, managing agents and residents to help reduce incidents of fly-tipping. The Council is contacting landlords of properties offering advice on their responsibilities and how to dispose of their waste properly.

Cllr Jackie Smith the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "The council will not tolerate fly-tipping in the royal borough and will always take strong action to prevent the irresponsible and illegal behaviour of those dumping rubbish.

"The success of recent work is very heartening and will hopefully lead to a safer and more pleasant local environment. I am thankful to the environment champions and all the organisations for the role they have played in the project's success."

WORKING IN PARTNERSHIP:
royal borough staff and local residents work together to clear up after the fly-tippers

Take pride in you ne

ONE Royal borough resident who got involved in helping to clear fly-tipping by signing up as an environmental champion spoke to GT about her concerns.

"Fly tipping and rubbish dumping on roads has had an enormous impact on me over the years. I feel strongly that the environment we live in has a great influence on our emotional health and well-being, and being surrounded by rubbish and dumped furniture makes me feel angry, frustrated, dirty and takes away from any sense of pride in the local community.

Taking responsibility for your rubbish and the disposal of household furniture is essential to create a community where everybody can relax. I feel people then take no notice of the problem and think

● If you take the environment into account

The royal borough's estates are also badly affected by rubbish dumping and almost 750 fly-tips have been reported to the council in the last two months alone. Tenants can help keep their local neighbourhood clean and tidy by calling 020 8921 4661 and arranging to have large waste items collected. They also can discuss fly-tipping issues confidentially by contacting their Tenancy Enforcement Officer.

Reporting and clearing waste

RESIDENTS can play a huge part in keeping the royal borough clean, tidy and free of rubbish by responsibly disposing of waste and reporting cases of fly-tipping to the council.

If you discover rubbish that has been dumped illegally, or you see someone doing so, please report it to the council as soon as possible so it can be investigated. It is important to include details such as the date, time and location; type of rubbish; details of the vehicle, including registration number if possible; details and descriptions of the people who dumped the rubbish if possible.

If you can, write this information down on a piece of paper at the time you witness the incident. Sign and date it, and keep it safe as this will aid the investigation. Photographs of the rubbish and location are also very useful as evidence.

On receiving reports, the council will aim to remove small fly-tips by the end of the next working day and when it has sound evidence of the culprit's identity, enforcement action is swiftly taken. For larger or particularly hazardous fly-tips, specialist equipment or contractors may be required, which can take up to four working days.

Any items that have been fly-tipped at the side of the road will be collected and separated for recycling.

In the first instance, you can report fly-tipping online by completing a form available at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/flytipping. Alternatively you can telephone the Call Centre on 020 8921 4661 to report fly-tipping by phone.

● If you use bags rather than wheelie bins, leaving bags of household rubbish on the street overnight increases the chance of them being split open. Refuse collection starts at 6am so if you are an early riser it helps to put your bags out on the morning of collection rather than the night before. Call the Contact Centre to see if you are eligible for a container for your waste. You can check your waste collection day at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/checkbincollection.

● Make use of the special collection service for unwanted bulky items – find out more at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/bulkywaste or take them to the Reuse and Recycle Centre in Nathan Way, Thamesmead.

If you put out furniture or similar items on the street without booking a time for collection it constitutes fly-tipping and the royal borough will take action against people that do this.

● Beware of other people that offer to take your rubbish away for you. Unlicensed waste carriers are often the cause of fly-tipping and householders are responsible for ensuring that anyone who takes their waste away has a licence.

Opening credits for tomorrow's film makers

THE next Scorsese or Spielberg could be discovered in Royal Greenwich after a screening by film students last week.

The event at the Greenwich Picturehouse on June 12 saw the culmination of three years' work, as almost 60 students from the University of Greenwich finally completed their degrees in Film and TV Production. Excerpts and trailers of their final piece of coursework – a full TV or film production – was showcased at the Picturehouse – with the students understandably relieved. Paul Drew from Greenwich was especially pleased. "I am so glad it's over. I can only hope that my work gets picked up by a TV producer," he told Scene. The full films, together with other visual media projects, are being screened at the university's new Stockwell Street buildings as part of the Creative Arts and Digital Professions Graduate Show. "The buildings are purpose-built and so much better than where we were before," said Chris Nunn PhD, visiting lecturer and director of the National Students Film Festival. The facility cost £80m to design and build and includes two full pre and post-production facilities and a full sized film theatre.

But it was the degree's practical application that attracted Paul, who said: "Film Studies is much more common but I need a job and Greenwich was the only university offering a full production course." Chris agreed: "Nothing quite beats producing for the big screen in preparing students for a full time job." Students are given huge flexibility in their choice of film but at the same time encouraged to consider the demands of the market. The student screening came days ahead of the royal borough's first Film Festival last weekend, created to help reflect the area's growing reputation as a leading film location. The students are hopeful that their work will be seen by top TV and film directors over the coming weeks.

Paul summed the evening up nicely. "The next Scorsese or Spielberg could be here tonight. All we need is a dollop of luck."

The Creative Arts and Digital Professions Graduate Show runs at the University's Stockwell Street Buildings until June 26.

THE next arts extravaganza in the Royal Greenwich Festivals kicks off with its usual fiery start this weekend.

The Greenwich and Docklands International Festival is an annual feast of free outdoor fun which has become a must-see event in the capitals's summer calendar.

The outdoor, performing arts festival in Greenwich and over the river in Tower Hamlets showcases outdoor theatre in neglected urban spaces highlighting the relationship between people and places.

Over the course of 10 days, June 26 – July 5, international artists will perform breathtaking theatrical and acrobatic acts with global concerns – from climate change to social integration – as their themes. With a long standing history of everything spectacular, this year's programme will not disappoint.

June 26 sees the UK premiere, at Cutty Sark Gardens, of "Kori Kori," a French chorus of 18 actors and 14 musicians who will lead audiences on a theatrical journey through Greenwich. Inspired by the diversity of humanity, it explores how, through working together, we can create a better world.

Oxleas Woods plays stage to a children's event, The Secret Princess of Severndroog (July 2-5) but for a sensory overload of extravagant colour, The Four Fridas (Royal Artillery Barracks, July 1-4) is outstanding. It celebrates the life of Frida Kahlo, who despite being severely injured went on to become one of Mexico's greatest artists and a political icon.

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.

Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 1 July 2015 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 28 June 2015.

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

Landlord Licensing Scheme Consultation

A SELECTIVE LICENSING SCHEME FOR THE PRIVATE RENTED SECTOR

Tower Hamlets Council is considering introducing a selective licensing scheme for private landlords renting properties to tenants. This will mean that private landlords will need to obtain a license from the council before a property can be rented out.

The council wants to use selective licensing to tackle anti-social behaviour, deal with poor housing standards and to assist in improving the overall management of rented accommodation.

The areas where the scheme is under consideration are:

- Spitalfields and Banglatown
- Weavers
- Whitechapel
- Bow East
- Bow West
- Blackwall and Cubitt Town
- Millwall

For more information, come to one of our drop in sessions, at 6.30pm.

Wednesday, June 17 – Mulberry Place (Blackwall & Cubitt Town)

Monday, June 22 – Idea Store Whitechapel (Spitalfields & Banglatown)

Monday, June 29 – Rowing Club (Millwall)

Monday, July 6 – Idea Store Bow (Bow East)

If you are a private sector tenant, landlord, business or service provider located in or outside the areas listed above and would like to make some comments then please complete the online questionnaire at www.towerhamlets.gov.uk/llsconsultation

For further information, log on to www.towerhamlets.gov.uk/landlordlicensing
 Consultation runs until July 12, 2015

One Goal for young sports stars

CHARLTON Athletic Community Trust teamed up with the L&Q Housing Association to launch a new sports project at The Valley.

'One Goal' is a new year-long, free sport and creative arts programme launched for 5,000 young people aged 5 to 21 across London to use sport to involve, motivate and inspire young people across the city.

L&Q provided £387,000 of the funding, with more than £60,000 matched provided by Charlton Athletic along with Chelsea, Tottenham Hotspur, West Ham, Crystal Palace, Fulham, Millwall, Leyton Orient and Dagenham & Redbridge.

The nine clubs have come together for the first time to work on the initiative and this summer, participants will be able to choose to develop their coaching qualifications, access sport sessions and skill workshops, as well as creative activities including arts and creative writing. Part of this commitment will also see the clubs offer a total of six apprenticeship opportunities to young people who secure qualifications through the summer programme.

London FA County development manager David James said: "It was a pleasure to attend the 'One Goal' launch event and we look forward to supporting the project. Funding for grassroots sport is crucial so L&Q's investment and the delivery expertise of the nine professional clubs will ensure this is a success, for the benefit of young people in London".

Matthew Corbett, L&Q's assistant director for community investment said: "The 'One Goal' programme will ensure children across the communities we serve in London will be able to access a year of fun, football related activities from their local clubs for free. We are glad to be playing our part encouraging them to take up sport from a young age and to benefit from the positive life skills and well-being that go hand in hand with regular physical exercise and a healthy lifestyle."

skills. They compete for the Sportathon Shield and all children taking part receive a certificate and information and incentives on sports activities to keep them physically active throughout the summer."

Cllr Miranda Williams, cabinet member for culture & creative industries said: "This week is a reminder to the children to keep both their minds and bodies active during the summer so they are prepared and ready for school when they return. With everyone here, it's also a great way for each school to meet and for the children to make new friends whilst also keeping healthy."

FUN AND GAMES: Cllr Miranda Williams joins in at last year's Sportathon event

by Ronnie Woods

AROUND 2,400 children in years 3 and 4 from all 66 Greenwich primary schools are at the starting blocks for a massive schools sports day this week.

They are taking part in the Youth Sport Trust's National School Sports Week, which runs until June 26. The week includes the Royal Greenwich Sportathon and the official opening of a new Sport England funded play court at Nightingale Primary School in Woolwich.

The Royal Greenwich Sportathon is a week-long celebration of sport organised by the GLL Greenwich Sports Development Team for Greenwich primary school children and takes at Sutcliffe Park Athletics Track.

The Sportathon was created as an Olympic legacy event in 2006 to celebrate the award of the 2012 Olympic Games to London and was previously held at the Woolwich Barracks, home of Olympic Shooting.

Sportathon has had over 16,500 children take part to date and in recognition of its role in inspiring children to take part in sport, it was awarded the London 2012 Inspire Mark and is one of only 125 projects in London and 1018 projects in England to receive this prestigious award.

Jonathan Dixon, sports development manager for GLL, said: "The children take part in four activities such as athletics, big dance, sports wheelchair relay and multi-sport target
